Foreign Aid

present communist in this position, succeeds Arkady Sobelov, Constantin E. Zinchenko, Ilya S. Tchernychev, Dragoslav Protitch, Anatoly Dobrynin, and Georgy Petrovitch Arkadev. This office has control over all UN military, political, nuclear, disarmament and other vital questions. This arrangement, under which a communist has always held the second most important UN position, is the result of a secret agreement made between Molotov and Secretary of State Stettinius (Alger Hiss was one of his advisers) in London in 1945, and which was revealed in the book written by the second UN Secretary General, Trygve Lie, 'In The Cause Of Peace,' page 45 and 46."

No wonder such a respected figure as ex-President, Herbert Hoover, said last Aug. as reported in The Wanderer, Aug. 19:

"We must realize," said Hoover, "that the United Nations has failed to give us even a remote hope of lasting peace. Instead, it adds to the dangers of wars which now surround us."

The communist countries, he said, "have destroyed the usefulness of the United Nations to preserve peace."

"The time is here when, if the free nations are to survive, they must have a new and stronger worldwide organization," Hoover said.

"For purposes of this discussion I may call it the Council of Free Nations. It should include only those who are willing to stand up and fight for their freedom."

And in an apparent reference to the godlessness of the United Nations, Pope John XXIII himself said in Mater et Magistra:

"No folly is more characteristic of the modern era than the absurd attempt to reconstruct a solid and prosperous temporal order while prescinding from God, the only foundation on which it can endure.

"It is equally foolish to seek to exalt man's greatness by drying up the font from which his greatness springs and from which it is nourished; that is, by restraining and, if possible, checking his quest for God."

"FOREIGN AID" SINCE THE NEW DEAL

Winston Churchill said in London at an American Independence Day Dinner in July, 1950:

"Had it not been for Britain and America, Hitler would have destroyed communism, or, at least driven it back to the Ural Mountains."

The United States and the British Commonwealth destroyed the anti-communist powers of Europe and Asia, thereby creating a vacuum which Soviet Russia was only too pleased to fill. But it wasn't Britain that sparked off the war to "save small countries." Let's hear what the British Prime Minister, Neville Chamberlain, said to the American Ambassador to Britain, Joseph P. Kennedy, regarding the outbreak of the War. The quotation is from The Forrestal Diaries, Viking Press, New York, 1951. (Forrestal was the wartime Secretary of the Navy.)

"I played golf today with Joe Kennedy. I asked him about his conversations with Roosevelt and Neville Chamberlain from 1938 on. He said Chamberlain's position in 1938 was that England had nothing with which to fight and that she could not risk going to war with Hitler. Kennedy's view: That Hitler would have fought Russia without any later conflict with England if it had not been for Bullitt's (Wm. C. Bullitt, Ambassador to France) urging on Roosevelt in the summer of 1939 that the Germans must be faced down about Poland; neither the French nor the British would have made Poland a cause of war if it had not been for the constant needling from Washington. Bullitt, he said, kept telling Roosevelt that the Germans wouldn't fight, Kennedy that they would, and that they would overrun Europe. Chamberlain, he said, stated that America and the world Jews had forced England into the war."

Felix Frankfurter

Washington reporter Walter Trohan reported that Felix Frankfurter, former Senator Herbert Lehman and Henry Morgenthau, Jr. formed the Invisible Government of the United States.

Though Soviet Russia had invaded five small countries in 1939 to Germany's two, and though Russia's invasion of Poland was practically simultaneous with Hitler's, it was against anti-communist Germany, not the USSR, that the New Deal instigated war.

THE NEW DEAL GAVE SOVIET RUSSIA

—$11.2 billion in direct aid in World War II. Then in May, 1944, came another form of foreign aid—the loan by the Treasury of the American dollar printing plates direct to the Soviet Union. This enabled the USSR to print millions of American dollars —redeemable by the American taxpayer.

Henry Morgenthau, Jr., was in charge of the Treasury at the time, but he shifted the blame onto Harry Dexter White (Weiss), his Assistant, who committed "suicide" on being exposed as a communist spy a few years later. President Truman showed his friendship for communism by appointing White Assistant Secretary of the US Treasury in 1945 and US Director of the International Monetary Fund in 1946, though he had been warned by the FBI about White's communist espionage.

Richard L. Stokes, in an article published in Reader's Digest of March, 1953, said:

"Before the operation could be halted, after 18 months, it had cost American taxpayers, at a minimum estimate, 250 million dollars . . ."

"Even more diverting was the prospect of the millions it would require in American taxes to extricate West Germany from ruin—a ruin artfully advanced by a deluge of the Russians' currency made feasible by the U.S. Treasury. What a jolly way of helping on the classic Bolshevik prophecy that communism would force America to spend itself into bankruptcy!"

IMMEDIATELY AFTER THE WAR

—the Government of the USA helped stabilize the communist governments of Eastern Europe, as well as financing the Jewish mass emigration from the Soviet Union to Israel, through the United Nations Relief & Rehabilitation Administration, better known as UNRRA. According to the well-known American commentator, Fulton Lewis, Jr., in his column of Oct. 9, 1951, at least one billion American dollars went to bolster up Bolshevism through UNRRA. And at the instigation of the Wall Street international financier, Ex-Senator/Governor Herbert H. Lehman (NY), even the salaries of Soviet officials attached to UNRRA were paid by the US. In May, 1950, the eminent Washington reporter, Walter Trohan, reported that Senator Lehman, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., and Felix Frankfurter of the Supreme Court formed the invisible government of the United States.

This UNRRA aid, paid for by the American taxpayers, was at least in one communist country (Yugo-Slavia), to the writer's certain knowledge, represented as coming from "UNRRA-GRAD in the Soviet Union."

STALIN'S ORDERS FOR "FOREIGN AID"

—were taken up by the (then) head of the US Communist Party, Earl Browder, who wrote in his 1944 work, Teheran, Our Path In War And Peace, that America should underwrite the industrialization of Africa, the Middle East and the Far East in partnership with other governments. Mr. Henry Wallace, the pro-communist who was for a time Vice-President of the United States, then took up the Browder-Stalin theme and pushed "foreign aid" for all he was worth. Wallace was quoted in the London Times of July 17, 1950:

"No real solution of the Asian problem would be found short of a conference between President Truman and Mr. Stalin to work out a 'real' Point Four Programme to aid backward nations in Asia and elsewhere."

Wallace, who had been Vice-President in the Roosevelt regime, ran for the Presidency in 1948 as candidate of the communist-promoted "Progressive Party."

MARSHALL PLAN AND "POINT FOUR"

Our hidden persuaders are not fools, and they realized that the term Stalin Plan or Browder Plan would not go over too well with the American taxpayer. So they called foreign aid after a general—General Marshall. Through Marshall Aid, millions of US dollars were poured out to leftist-dominated countries, and from these much reached the Soviet Union and her satellites. For lending his name to "foreign aid," Marshall was given the Nobel Peace Prize in 1953. (For a well documented exposure of the role played by Nobel Prizes in the International Communist Conspiracy, see the American Mercury magazine, January, 1961.)

Marshall also showed his devotion to leftist causes—or his incredible gullibility—when he prepared the ground for the communist victory in China by disarming the forces of General Chiang Kai-shek for two years while the Reds got arms from the USSR. Yet we are told the Marshall Plan saved the world from communism!

Then in January, 1949, President Truman came out with his notorious Point Four programme which aimed to invest American dollars through the UN in the "under-developed areas of the world," including those in the Soviet bloc.

POSITION TODAY

Today foreign aid is coming more and more out into the open and toeing the Stalin-Browder line. The well known economist, Henry Hazlitt, wrote in the May 9, 1960 issue of Newsweek:

"Ever since the advent of the New Deal, socialist assumptions have tended increasingly to supplant capitalist assumptions in our thinking. Nowhere has this change been quite as marked as in foreign economic policy. The whole foreign-aid program, outside of purely military aid, rests on socialistic assumptions . . . Today we are actually making state 'planning' or socialism a condition for the receipt of our foreign aid."

Confirmation of this is found in the following column by D. H. Connors which appeared in the Green Bay Register, Feb. 16, 1962:
